CHANGES MADE IN EXTERIORS

Appearance of Dwelling Enhanced with Minimum Expense by Remodeling

Practically every woman would refuse to go out really to dress in the garments that were stylish 10 years ago And if the average man would look with scorn at the thought of owning an automobile that was built back in 1910.

Yet both complacently live in a house that has the architectural design of Spanish American war days and think nothing of it Both put up with the inconveniences that go with such a dwelling and are satisfied with the old home

Only recently has the homeowner begun to realize that it is no longer necessary to live in old appearing houses simply because that was the way they were originally built During the past year or so it has been brought to the attention of the property owner that houses clothed in out-of-date lines show as poor taste as dressing in clothes with the lines of years ago Both may have utility —but how unnecessary the old lines are!

Radical changes in the appearance of the exterior of the residence are possible The old houses are not cast in an inflexible mould that forbids alteration but to the contrary are plastic in the hands of the experienced builder and can emerge from his efforts dressed in the lines of today

Show Changes Possible

On this page we show a smart looking cottage that was once a low lying weather beaten frame house Illustrations of this sort are striking and focus attention on the fact that modernization accomplishes wonders in design The before and after views point out more effectively than a thousand words the marked changes in appearance that come with modernization

The home owner who lives in an out of date house often hesitates to improve his dwelling because he has a mistaken idea of the costs of modernizing These costs are usually moderate A surprising range of improvements can be made for a few thousand dollars

Costs Not Excessive

A survey of modernization reveals that the average cost is in the neighborhood of two thousand dollars These figures have been compiled from a survey made covering many thousands of homes

The relative small cost of clothing the house in a new dress and modernizing the interior emphasizes the fact that every home owner can make his dwelling up to date No longer is it necessary to live under uncomfortable conditions—to go without the better things of life Modernization is within the reach of all

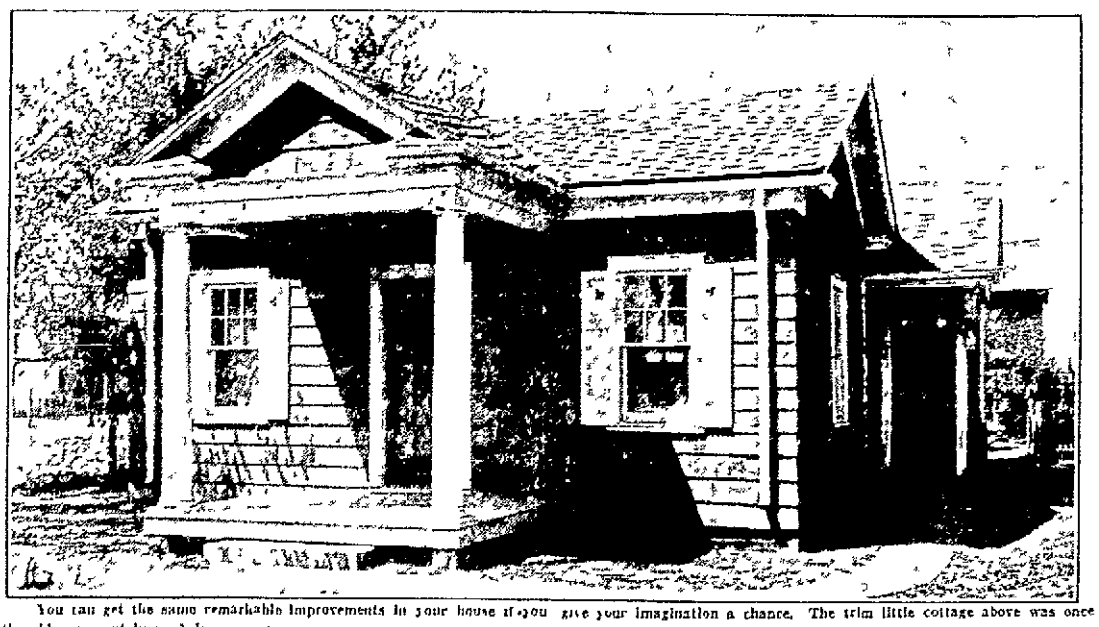
Money Usually Easy to Obtain

The financial question sometimes proves to be a stumbling block to progress The home owner has the idea of modernizing but wonders where the money is coming from Building and loan associations banking institutions and private individuals are willing to loan their money on first mortgages especially when the money is to be devoted to modernizing a home or apartment The home owner need but make his desires known to meet with a courteous hearing If financial institution knows that modernization adds to the value of the house Their money is being placed in a residence the value of which is immediately increased The risks are small

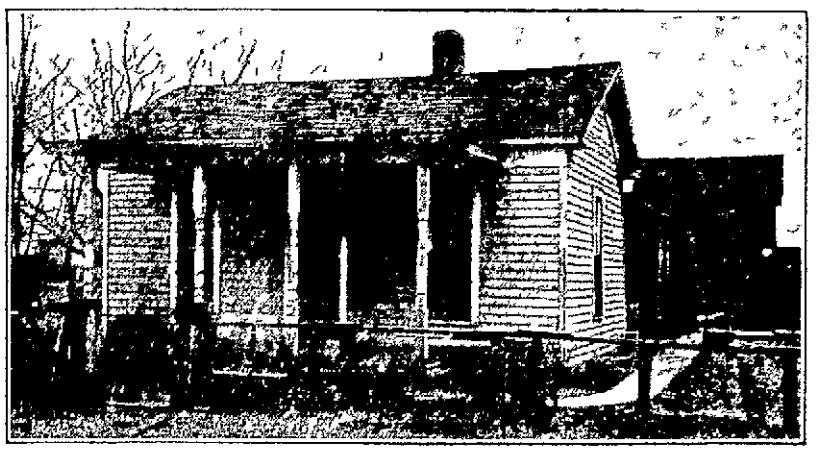
Some banking institutions provide a plan by which the loan may be paid off on a monthly basis Spread over a term of years the monthly cost is small When these monthly costs are balanced against the ensuing comforts and the pride that comes with owning a house that is new and fresh the balance is decidedly in favor of making the loan It becomes the right thing to do

When the old fashioned lines are torn away and the home is clothed again in the artistic architectural dress of today a new sense of values becomes known to the home owner The spirit of the family freshens and takes on a new growth A keener appreciation of life results

EXAMPLE OF WHAT MODERNIZATION CAN DO



You can get the same remarkable improvements in your house if you give your imagination a chance. The trim little cottage above was once the old worn out house below



In the older sections of town you'll find many cottages like this With sturdy timbers they await the touch of modernization to make them into homes of beauty and comfort

REMODELING IS KEY TO BEAUTY

Touch of Modernization Brings Lively Appearance from Otherwise Drab House

Out on the edge of town you will find many small houses like the one pictured on this page Built back in the days of free silver they stood still while the rest of the world passed by

These are the homes of many families who yearn for better appearing dwellings but who do not realize that these hopeless looking houses are truly dull caterpillars that can be awakened into glorious butterflies

Sturdy Frames Reclothed

A touch of the magic wand of modernization and a new home leaps into being—a new home based on the sturdy frame was clothed by the drab looking house of former days

When the owners of these old houses realize how simple the transformation really is, they will wonder why they did not enter the spirit of modernization years ago

The illustration of the house before the owner called for advice shows a particularly forlorn looking affair It is a shoe box with windows roof and a non-descript set of additions trailing along behind The patched fence aids immeasurably in building up an atmosphere of decay and blighted hopes

A New Porch

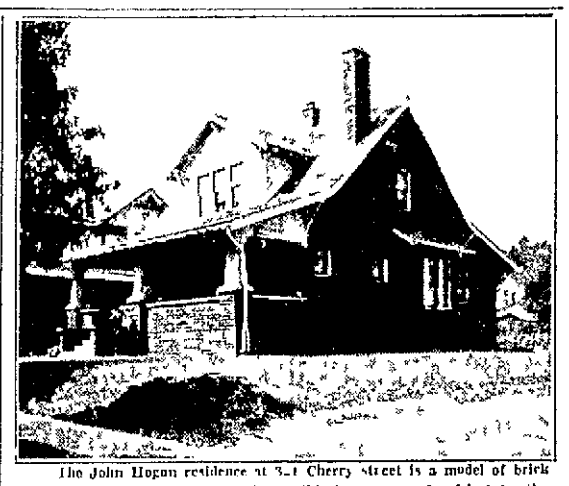
The old front porch with its wood en machine turned pillars reminiscent of Victorian days has been superseded by a small square stoop with round wooden columns supporting a shelter with a pitched roof all trimmed in white The shingled sides of the dwelling are stained

The windows at the front carry blinds each with a shamrock cut out of a panel The front door contains ten small panes of plate glass which aid in lighting the living room

The rambling additions at the back have been rejuvenated into a harmonious part of the cottage Now they are not after thoughts but a component part of the building

Light Fixtures Should Harmonize

Before electrical fixtures especially the hanging luster of lights is selected the decorative scheme of the room should be decided The electrical fixtures should be suitable to the general scheme of decoration and the type of furniture to be used with them



The John Hogan residence at 341 Cherry street is a model of brick fireproof construction Materials for this house were furnished by the Marion Builders' Supply Co 740 Bennett street

Staircase Permits Decorative Appeal

Too many staircases appear to have been designed merely as a means of ascending to the upper story The staircase may be and should be one of the features of the house

The location of the stairs is important for many of the effects in modernizing depend on the amount of space available Since space in the center of the house is often valuable some staircases are cramped and defy artistic treatment If extensive alterations are possible the staircase may be changed to permit a decorative appeal

In the older houses many of the staircases were a simple flight of steps A long narrow hall with a straight flight may be treated in a colonial style with white woodwork and a mahogany handrail of slender balusters

A curved staircase makes a graceful appearance but must be designed and proportioned correctly to be effective

A third type of staircase often used is the platform staircase where a short flight reaches a landing or platform from which a second flight leads to the floor above The landing should be placed half way between the two floors and should be spacious enough to suggest repose Often the staircase can be arranged so that a window looks off the landing A window seat a period chair or a grandfather's clock sometimes is placed on the landing to give it a decorative appeal

The staircase should be constructed with wide treads and low risers so that the exertion of climbing is apparently lessened

$3,000 To Be Spent on New Filling Station

Building permits issued by Sylvester Larkin over the week end totaled $3 750 Of this amount, $3 000 is to go to build a new filling station at 309 South Main street by Thomas Tyner

The remainder of the total will be used to improve a sun porch at the home of E C Garver at 707 East Center street

Versatile Lon Chaney Comes in His First Vocal Performance in Movies, Billie Dove and Basil Rathbone on Program in "A Notorious Affair."

BY HALLIE HOUCK

Shows these days are becoming premiers for silent film stars who have found their voices

Lately we had the glamorous Greta Garbo in her first talkie and now we have the versatile Lon Chaney appearing in his first vocal picture The Unholy Three' which he made as a silent several years ago It's at the Palace Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday

Lon Chaney

The picture calls for two disguises and Chaney evidently set on convincing the public that his voice is as adept at changes as his make up gives five vocal characterizations and also makes a dummy sing by the art of ventriloquism

The story is different dealing with three side show men, a ventriloquist a midget and the giant who have formed an alliance known as 'The Unholy Three' Their chief interest in life is robbing wealthy homes Chaney changes his appearance to that of an old woman and runs a bird store Harry Earles the midget poses as a baby and Ivan Linow as the baby's father

Love for a girl Lila Lee, brings about the unfolding of the story

Friday and Saturday we have Gary Cooper at the Palace again this time in A Man from Wyoming Cooper has glorified Virginia and Texas and now has moved to Wyoming Incidentally Leon Montana producer and his first silent picture was Nevada" Forty four more states to go, and Cooper will have glorified the United states

The marines and infantry of the World war have been won additional glory via the screen and in this latest picture Cooper brings laurels to the engineering corps It is one of the facts listed in army archives that the first American troops to come into actual contact with the Germans in the World war were the 11th Engineers on the Cumbrai front

Array of Stars in Cast at Marion

From chorus girl to stardom that's Billie Dove coming to the Marion Wednesday and Thursday in a Notorious Affair' S fact she used ot be a Broadway chorus girl but that's all forgotten now

Basil Rathbone, who can be described only as suave sophisticated and other words of like import, plays opposite the glorious Billie in this society drama.

Billie Dove

There's a theme song and if its anything like the title should be a roaring success— Our Hour of Love Oh and that wicked boy Francis is in the cast with Montagu Love playing the villians a break and Kenneth Thompson as a doctor

In her latest picture the statuesque Billie changes from a spoiled girl to the poor wife of a genius and then land to a wealthy girl That's done only in pictures Ey the way Basil Rathbone is the musical genius and it is interesting to know that in private life he plays the organ, violin and piano

• • •

Heres one we don't know much about, but we have heard are seen George O Brien in some good stuff and therefore have faith in him in Rough Romance at the Marion Friday and Saturday

Helen Chandler and Antonio Moreno are prominent names in the supporting cast

"A two fisted young lumberjack a beautiful girl in an isolated trading post and a villian who stops at nothing, is the way the picture has been described

The entire cast company was transported from Hollywood to Rainier National Park in the Cascade range back of Tacoma in order that the filming of exterior sequences would be of the convincing tone that makes or mars an otherwise good show

Daily Proverb—"All the praise of inward virtue consists in outward action."

Austria and Italy have reached an agreement under which the former will pay off her relief debt to the latter of about $3,400,000 in thirty annual payments. The example set by the United States seems to be bearing fruit.

Using the German language, soviet Russia is propagandizing in Germany by radio from Moscow, devoting an hour to it three times a week. A vicious national neighbor may prove more of a curse than a vicious one next door, and that's saying a lot.

State examiners report $24,000 unpaid fines and costs in liquor and other cases up in Akron, non-collection of bond forfeitures, 176 persons released without paying of fines and $40,000 in liquor fine suspensions. The criminal branch of the municipal court up there manifestly is being run along mighty generous lines.

Nine gangsters wiped out by fellow gangsters in eight days up in Detroit. The gangsters of the big Michigan city are doing far more to eliminate the city's criminal element than the city's law-enforcement agencies.

Despite drops in the sales of other cars, the German Ford company announced an increased turnover of sixty-five per cent. for the first half of the year ended June 30. Having acquired a plant in Italy recently which will soon be turning out his machines and filling the one hole not covered by him in the field of civilized Europe, why should Mr. Ford worry regarding what the reaction to our new tariff law may be?

The Prince of Wales presented each of the thirty-six American Gold Star mothers with vellum-covered diaries bearing his autograph just before they went aboard the Republic at Southampton. A gracious act, that. No wonder the world feels kindly toward him.

Otto Sankuhel, known as the "attic" lover, who was convicted of the manslaughter eight years ago of the husband of a Los Angeles woman with whom he continued to live until his arrest some months since, has been given his liberty on the concurrence of the state in a defense motion that the statute of limitations had nullified the jury's verdict, returned last week. The criminal gets all the breaks of the law when he is holed into court.

The program has undergone a change. Instead of acting as one in a campaign against the city's criminal world as the result of the murder of "Jake" Lingle, as they planned to do, Chicago papers are fighting each other. Considering the odium which has been cast upon the newspapers up there, one might assume that they would see the wisdom of standing together and staging a clean-up.

Nominated for World Court Bench.

Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, has been nominated by Denmark for a full term on the World court bench and the short term ending December 30, of the present year, caused by the resignation of Charles Evans Hughes, and Charles Cheney Hyde, professor of international law and diplomacy at Columbia university, has been nominated by Holland for a full term on the same bench.

Each national group is permitted to make four nominations, two of which must be of men who are not nationals of the country making them. Thus far Denmark and Holland are the only two nations which have reported their nominations to the League of Nations.

Up to date, the only resignations from the World court bench have been those of two Americans—Mr. Hughes and John Bassett Moore—which may work against the selection of either of the Americans nominated unless there is assurance that he will serve out the term to which he is elected. It so happens that the revised statute of the court bearing on its judges provides that a term is nine years and that a judge must give his full time to the court, and this new statute will probably go into effect before the election and may make the honor, were there no other considerations, undesirable to Professor Hyde. A nine-year term in the case of Mr. Kellogg, were he to permit his nomination to stand and he be elected, would mean that he would be eighty-three at the end of his term, but the short term which will end next December may be to his liking.

It is stated that such is the prestige which Mr. Kellogg achieved in Denmark through the Briand-Kellogg pact, that the Danes made the nomination for the long term as well as the short, despite his age.

In any event, no matter what the outcome, the Danes have paid a splendid compliment to the former secretary of state and former ambassador to the Court of St. James.

The Purpose Behind the Resolution.

There should be no misunderstanding regarding the design behind the senatorial request for all papers in the possession of President Hoover in any way bearing on the London naval treaty. It should be apparent to all that the purpose of the request was twofold; to embarrass the president, and to cause delay, in the hope, which will probably prove a vain one, of bringing about disapproval of the treaty.

That the resolution asking for such papers as the President may have was not the result of a desire for information, is evident from the fact that many members of the senate are familiar with all the communications and data the President has bearing on the treaty, and any senator not thus informed may be, as the papers are open to inspection by any senator on agreement to hold them as confidential communications, just as the President himself is in honor bound to hold them.

President Hoover brought out the necessity for holding confidential the papers in question, when he said in his message in response to the senate resolution of last week:

"This treaty, like all other international negotiations, has involved statements, reports, tentative and informal proposals as to subjects, persons, and governments, given to me in confidence. The executive, under the duty of guarding the interests of the United States, in the protection of future negotiations and in maintaining relations of amity with other nations, must not allow himself to become guilty of a breach of trust by betrayal of these confidences.

"He must not affront representatives of other nations, and thus make future dealings with those nations more difficult and less frank. To make public, in debate or in the press, such confidences would violate the invariable practice of nations. It would close to the United States those avenues of information which are essential for future negotiations and amicable intercourse with the nations of the world. I am sure the senate does not wish me to commit such a breach of trust."

Of course, the members of the senate know that the position taken by the President is not only right, but also fortified by precedents going back to the country's earliest history, and the President knows that the members of the senate know it. And the senate very probably knows also that talk of secret understandings and promises is all buncombe. In any event the senate has the President's statement, repeated "with the utmost emphasis," that in the negotiations "there were no secret or concealed understandings, promises or interpretations, nor any commitments whatever, except as appear in the treaty itself and in the interpretative exchange of notes recently suggested by your committee on foreign affairs, all of which are now in the hands of the senate."

The chief purpose of the opponents of the treaty in bringing about the passage of the resolution was to delay action in the hope that something might develop to weaken support of the treaty and cause its defeat. They knew Ambassador Dawes. It may be well to remember that the ambassador is the personal representative of the President and not of the senate. Knowing him, even before being acquainted with the communications he sent to his chief, they very probably figured that he, with his well-known frankness, might have made statements or used expressions in his messages which might give offense to other powers if given publication or made the subject of debate. Realizing this, they asked for the papers, knowing that the President would refuse to turn them over save under an agreement that all matters therein would be held confidential, and they probably counted on his refusal to cause resentment on the part of at least some of the senators not allied with them in opposition to the treaty for what such senators might take as an affront to the dignity which the senate still assumes it possesses, but with which it is no longer in the public mind accredited.

Ruth Alexander reached an altitude of 26,000 feet out in San Diego last week, exceeding her own world altitude record for women by 6,000 feet. After accomplishing her feat she lost consciousness and dropped 1,800 feet before she recovered, which shows that Ruth is a regular woman, fainting after the thing is over.

As damages for the fracturing of several vertebrae when a bus in which he was riding at forty-five miles an hour hit a depression and bounced him against its top from which he fell upon the back of a seat, a Chicago jury awarded a traveling salesman a verdict of $100,000 against the Pickwick Greyhound Lines company. The bus lines business is not all clear profit, despite the fact that the taxpayers provide the buses highways at comparatively little cost.

Eight armed bandits chased the mayor of Royalton, Illinois, and, when he sought shelter in an ice plant and stood them off with his gun, stole the truck he was driving. It may soon be necessary to employ a searchlight to locate an occasional evidence of the law and order which was once the rule throughout the land.

Mighty Good Work.

Without regard to where guilt may not rest or what may be the legal classification of the crime committed, the recovery of $3,400 worth of jewelry taken from the E. C. Watters home on east Center street and the arrest of two suspects was mighty good work on the part of the local police department.

The story of the recovery and arrests, as carried in our news columns Saturday, shows real headwork on the part of the police department, and whether it was that of Chief Thompson alone or he had the assistance of other members of the force in working out the case doesn't matter, tribute is due the department.

The perseverance manifested in the handling of the case, the persistence shown in running down each clew, the quiet with which the investigation was conducted throughout, are all matters for commendation, and this newspaper is glad to offer its congratulations.

ANDY HANDS IT TO AMOS.

Editorial Opinion.

BREAKING THE LAW TO ENFORCE IT.

One of the features of prohibition enforcement that has been largely responsible for the disrepute into which it has been fallen has been the practice of breaking other laws to bring about the punishment of violators. Too frequently, this official law-breaking has resulted disastrously for innocent persons.

In this category falls the practice of government rum-chasers of plying the sea and inland waterways at night without running lights. That this is in vogue is amply shown by the recent sinking of a small pleasure craft in the Delaware river, in which incident an entire family was thrown into the water and narrowly escaped death. The government vessel involved, according to witnesses and the statement of an officer, was running without lights on this occasion.

In addition, scores of complaints are pouring in from individuals and shipping interests, citing incidents of narrow escape. Representative Robert H. Clancy, of Michigan, has officially called attention to conditions on the Detroit river and Great lakes where, he asserts, it is common practice for federal craft to lie in shipping lanes without lights and to patrol their districts in the same manner.

It should not require a major catastrophe to put an end to what is palpably a dangerous situation. The government officials responsible are gambling the capture of a few rum-runners against the lives of innocent citizens, an all too familiar spectacle in the enforcement of the liquor laws. The prohibition laws are important, but not so overwhelmingly so that the flagrant violation of other laws designed to protect the rights and privileges of citizens is justified to enforce them.—Columbus Dispatch

A FRIENDLY VISIT.

The American battleships, Arkansas, Florida and Utah, under the flag of Rear Admiral Cluverius, put into Kiel the other day for an informal ninety-six-hour visit. This statement may not sound particularly exciting, but the event itself was of considerable significance, because it was the first post-war stop of an American fleet at a German port, and it was featured by the presence of midshipmen from the Annapolis academy, who are on a training cruise.

Only a short time ago such a call on a German port by vessels of the United States might have been a rather painful event, and might have had a tendency to retard rather than hasten the healing of the wounds of war. But at Kiel the guests were received almost with open arms and were genuinely welcomed. The band on board the German flagship present played "The Star Spangled Banner," and the band of the Arkansas responded with the German national hymn. The admirals and local officials exchanged visits, salutes were fired, and the local newspapers indicated pleasure over the opportunity afforded to return the "generous hospitality extended regularly to German ships in American waters since 1925."

The meaning of the episode is clear and pleasing. The passions engendered by the World war are passing away as far as relationships between the United States and Germany are concerned. Indeed, to a large extent they have quite disappeared, the process of recession being furthered by the sportsmanlike effort of the Germans to rehabilitate themselves economically and politically without complaining or whining, and by the practical wisdom of her statesmen.—Detroit Free Press.

A TRUTHFUL CENTENARIAN.

Our favorite centenarian is Friedrich Koelling, a St. Louisan, who attained that magnificent age yesterday. Usually, the centenarian is a hopelessly vain creature. That day is lost when some one who is not the least interested undertakes to make him happy by asking, "To what do you attribute your great age?" It is exactly the same low order of flattery involved in asking a mature woman how she retains that schoolgirl complexion. The centenarian then delightfully proceeds to unroll his formula. There are about six of these formulae, as follows: Abstinence from alcoholic liquor. A daily nip of whisky. No exercise or undue exertion. Plenty of exercise and all sorts of dangerous living. No tobacco. The comfort of a pipe.

Mr. Koelling belongs to none of these schools. When pinned down, as he was yesterday, he admitted that he has no idea why he has lived so long. This sets a record, establishes a precedent, to say nothing of marking an epoch.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch, July 10.

Distress After Eating.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There are certain complaints which are common to most of the human race. We give advice, but constant repetition is necessary. Time and time again society must be impressed with the importance of overcoming these conditions, in order that good health may be enjoyed.

Constipation is one such condition. More symptoms are the result of this trouble than perhaps of any other disease. In addition, the symptoms are often so obscure they hardly seem traceable to this cause.

Poor intestinal elimination, if permitted to go on, results eventually in general poisoning, "auto-intoxication." There will be headache, bad breath, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and general discomfort. There are many other symptoms equally disagreeable.

The first thing to do about constipation is to sit down and take stock of all the symptoms from which you suffer. Nine times out of ten it will be found that there is acidity after eating, bad taste in the mouth, feeling of fullness after eating and poor elimination. There may be pain in the joints, backache, dark spots before the eyes, lack of energy, and so forth.

In the treatment of constipation the diet is most important. Avoid all fried foods, as well as excessive quantities of starch and sugar.

Add to the diet bran, coarse cereals and breads, roughage such as celery, raw cabbage and salads. Stewed fruits, well-cooked vegetables, plenty of water to drink—all these will help a lot.

Exercise is important in correcting constipation. I do not mean simply an occasional lackadaisical walk, but exercise that will give the blood circulation. Swimming, rowing, brisk walking, gymnasium exercises, "health" exercises are all beneficial.

To hasten and increase elimination the use of mineral oil is wise. This may be taken plain or with agar-agar.

The use of the oil is not to produce the effects of castor oil. It merely acts by its presence, lubricating the intestinal wall and in this way encouraging the discharge of waste.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

E. H. H. Q—What causes deep circles under the eyes? My health is otherwise good.

A—These blemishes may be due to lack of sleep, worry, intestinal upsets, etc. Try to find the underlying cause and the proper treatment will suggest itself.

* * *

A. E. R. —What is the cause of eczema and what treatment would you suggest?

A—The trouble may be due to a number of causes—improper diet and poor elimination are among the important factors when looking for a cause. Keep the bowels open and the system clear.

* * *

M. W. Q—What will take away the mucus in my throat?

A—You are probably troubled with nasal catarrh, with dropping into the throat. In its cure first attention must be given to correcting the underlying catarrhal condition.

* * *

MISS O. A. Q—How can I reduce?

2—What can be done for constipation?

A—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards the diet. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2—The diet should be corrected. Most important of all, foods unduly rich in fats and starches should be avoided.

* * *

R. E. M. Q—What causes the fingers and palm of the hand to itch and burn?

A—The trouble may be due to eczema. For full particulars send self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

READER. Q—What causes heartburn and what is the remedy?

2—How can one reduce a high abdomen? Also a large bust?

A—Heartburn is due to acidity and this in turn is caused by improper digestion and poor elimination. Correct the diet and keep the system clear.

2—Cut down on sweets and starches and take some systematic exercise daily.

* * *

A READER. Q—How can I reduce?

A—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards the diet. Exercise is, of course, essential. For other information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

An Earthly Paradise.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

Paris, July 14—The Bois is my notion of earthly Elysium. Here Paris relaxes, dreams and makes love. Its mossy trees, rippling streams, shy walks, dewy grass, wild flowers ringing back the happy rays of the sun and violet aura of sky speak perpetually of beautiful secrets unknown to man.

The Bois stands always with its protecting arms outstretched toward Paris—a sheltering haven of cheerful loveliness. Any day, rain or shine, the carpeted green will be dotted with sprawling figures, like the battle field after action, closely hugging the earth—and lost in reverie.

This morning in one of its dells, soft and velvety with the dead leaves of centuries, a young idealist was stretched out on his back gazing at the sky with the vacant stare of a dog that had caught its tail in a crack. Beside him were a package of cigarets, a phonograph and a book of poems.

I came upon him suddenly and for some reason tip-toed away. Sitting on the benches everywhere are those incredibly old mustached, and gaunt nurses, with baby cabs at their side, knitting—always knitting. Lovers stroll encircled arm in arm and stop unashamed and starry eyed to exchange kisses.

In the fields athletes were playing Rugby football, polo, croquet and the tennis courts were alive with enthusiasts. On the wooded drives yellow and red wheeled dog carts with high stepping horses tandem drawing the aristocratic Frenchman and his statue-like liveried groom on the side-seat flashed by.

Auteuil and Longchamps race courses are in the Bois as are Chateaux Madrid, Armenonville, Pavilion Royale and a half dozen other famous restaurants. There are bridle paths, boating on myriad artificial lakes and every time I stroll in the Bois I find a new elusive and delightful foot-path.

There are several palatial residences in the Bois—one is owned by Pierre Cartier, the jeweler, another by Coty, the perfumer, and still another by a Maharajah—wherever they come from. A beautiful spot. And if Ed Wynn is not kidding about loving the woods—he must come over. Look for me near the Bagatelle!

* * *

In rounding a turn of a driveway in the Bois today Will Hogg's sister, Miss Ima, electrified our party by recognizing an illustrious stroller ambling leisurely along a bypath—his leonine head bare and his great shock of white hair askew in the breeze. It was Paderewski, the great Polish pianist and patriot, whose firm step and clear eye told of his return to health. We trust he did not notice how we jockeyed past him twice, for it was gawkery born of a sincere and tremendous admiration.

This afternoon after a lunch at LaRue's we visited that squandered waste of architectural triumps that is Fontainebleau. Old Sol was resplendent, and the mighty forests were dappled with rainbow-like prisms and flecks of sunshine—producing a virta of coloring that reminded me of those beheld through a toy kaledioscope when a boy, shifting, changing, fantastical. But the gray walls, steep pitched roofs, towering red chimneys, porticoes and colonades of the Fontainebleau palaces leave this gadabout a little cold. Its glitter to me is the glisten from pitiless tears of outraged peasants.

It was different, however, at the village of Barbizon a few kilometers away where the Barbizon school of art was cradled in its timbered cup of exquisite scenic beauty. We went, of course, to worship at the little cottage of the great painter, Millet, preserved intact for posterity. We visited with awe his studio and beheld the easel at which he sat while his immortal "Angelus" escaped on canvas. We stood reverently at the side of the bed upon which the artist breathed his last. We also walked by the studio where Rousseau toiled and the hotel where Robert Louis Stevenson lived and wrote. Barbizon itself suggests a Callot engraving come to life.

Einstein's Views on Space.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Einstein has evolved a new theory! Sick or well, it is the same thing: he always manages to upset the conventional view of things. This last theory popped into his head while he was confined to his bed by illness. To theories he evolves when he is well are difficult enough to understand, all who have tackled them are well aware. How much more difficult and complicated will prove the theories Einstein spins out from a sick-bed!

In the past, on the basis of tactile and sense impression, space has been derived from matter. We think of a rigid body; then we think of another rigid body somewhere else. A relationship between these rigid bodies is thought of; and so gradually we are brought to conceive of space. The primary conception was the rigid body; the derived concept was space. These notions gave rise to the conception of space as we find it in Euclid.

A new era was ushered in by Newton, when he placed acceleration in the forefront of his system. Again, we find ourselves tied down to matter as a primitive concept; for how can we think of force or acceleration except in reference to a really rigid body.

Einstein insists that this is a very significant fact in the history of science. Through Newton's introduction of acceleration as fundamental, space entered scientific history as a definite physical reality.

Down to the time of Faraday and Maxwell, bodies, space and time were fundamental. But with Faraday and Maxwell, electro-magnetism got its innings; and we were introduced to the idea of a "field." This notion compelled the postulation of something called ether, which was required in order to enable electro-magnetic phenomena to occur in space.

With his special relativity theory, Einstein showed that space and time were not separate entities, distinct categories. Space was divided into one group or block, three dimensions; and time was a block with but one dimension. But Einstein showed that if we were to accept the findings of physicists that light had a constant velocity in vacuo, we could not separate space and time as Newton and Decartes had done. Space and time separately, became united in a four-dimensional construct, called space-time.

For the general theory of relativity, which postulates the equivalence of accelerated and inertial systems, the old Euclidean geometry was not wide enough in its scope. A new geometry of space was developed, known as Riemannian, after its originator, the mathematician Riemann.

In this new extension of our ideas about space, Einstein has unified our general notion of world structure. He has united geometry and physics and shown that they are inseparably connected.

In this general relativity, geometry and gravitation were properly taken care of. And this was a great triumph, of course. But it did not satisfy Einstein, for it left electro-magnetic phenomena out of account.

The structure of space, conceived by Einstein, was not of precisely the right type. A modification of the structure had to be effected in order to take care of electro-magnetic phenomena. This is the problem at which Einstein is now working and which he believes that he has almost solved. He is on the eve of discovering a form of space which will embrace all phenomena, geometrical, physical, astrophysical, electro-magnetic. Is this just a new craze? Or is it an epochal step in the advance of science? Einstein feels sure that it will prove to be the latter. By comparing two bodies, not only with respect to size, but also with respect to direction, he expects to solve the problem. If he is successful it will indicate that space is not derivative, but primary, fundamental. That is what he means by the phrase: "Space has turned upon matter and is now devouring it."—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Three times as many revolvers were sold in the United States in seven months beginning July 1 as in the same period the preceding year. To stop the sale of revolvers except after the most careful investigation and for the most carefully established reasons is one of the ways to get at the root of crime. We do not spend enough time thinking about the contributions which law-abiding and so-called respectable citizens make to the crime record of this country. Most of us do something to promote crime although we would be indignant if charged with having any sympathy with the criminal class. The bad citizenship of many of us comes not from deliberate intent but from negligence.

A 156-year-old Turk visiting America says his great age is due or partly due to the fact that he doesn't drink liquor and never has. And on the same page of the paper we will doubtless read the story of somebody who is 104 years old and boasts that he has used whisky all his life and can't see any sense in prohibition. The Turk, born about the time of the battle of Lexington, says he has been a piano mover since 1800. He interests us a lot. He doubtless is not as old as he thinks but is older than most men. He demonstrates what the human being can stand. We might all live to be 150 if we lived normally, ate little, slept much, worried none. But listening to the rules for long life is worth little. There is no general rule. What is good for one system is not good for another. Stefansson, Arctic explorer, lived six months on nothing but meat and it agreed with him. He neither lost nor gained weight and his blood pressure was not affected. Others, eating no meat, fare vastly better. The best way is not to let others make rules for you. Make them for yourself. Use you judgment and study the results.

In 1917 Uncle Sam went to war. Some got the idea that this was to be his last war. The world thereafter was going to be kept in line by treaties and a general desire for peace. Now, thirteen years after we declared war for the last time, we are spending three times as much for military purposes as we were then. Peace is a plant that grows slowly. It has yet hardly broken through the soil.

All Pile Agony Ended Without Cutting or Money Back

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that Heuney & Cooper invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees money back if it does not end all Pile misery.—Adv.

QUIET WEEK AHEAD FOR FANS OF RECREATION BALL LEAGUES

Industrial League Games Feature Schedule for Next Five Days' Play

BY BOB PLIOTT

A fairly quiet week seems on the books for recreation ball fans this week that is still in comparison with the hectic contests of the past two or three weeks Pennants have been won and lost several times in all four of the leagues during the past month s play, and as yet, with five weeks to play no one team in the lot is sure of winning a loop emblem Lee Street Calvary Homehouse and the Kappas are leading, the four leagues and all draw fairly easy opponents this week with the exception of the No 1 leaders who tackle an errath team in Fort Smarts Epworth Seniors

REDS LOSE PUNCH ON ROAD AFTER BEATING CUBS FOUR STRAIGHT

Braves Give Chicago Bruins One Big Run in Twin Bill for Double Win

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds have departed quite a punch at home but it is strangely lacking when they take the road

Last week they looked like a team of world beaters at Redland field but yesterday when they moved to New York they lost 9 to 5 The Giants got out a few runs to lead for a while then subsided when faced by Joe Heving while the Giants started three and scored most of their runs in the last half of the game This result left the Reds with ten victories on the road and 21 at home

The Cubs lost two games to the Boston Braves 2 to 1 and 5 to 0 The first Boston victory was due to Harry Seibold s pitching The second to the Massachusetts law which makes it necessary to stop Sunday games promptly at six o clock That hour came after the Cubs had scored four runs in the ninth by before that inning ended and the score reverted to the eighth

Chicago s double defeat came as something of a boon to the league leading Brooklyn Robins They lost one of the years longest decisions to Pittsburgh 4 to 0 but still gained a half game Lee Elliott gave the Pirates only four hits while the Robins made nine off Larry French but wasted their opportunities by slipshod baserunning

The other National league clubs were idle

A's Back on Top

The Philadelphia Athletics once again raced to the top of the American league standing by pounding out a 12 to 1 victory over the St Louis Browns while Detroit beat Washington 5 to 1 These results placed the Athletics a full game in the lead

The world s champions hammered out 17 hits bunching them for five runs in the first innings, and four in the third while Roy Mahaffey held

Calvary May Find Epworth Seniors Tough in Feature Tuesday Evening Clash.

United Brethren Christian clash has possibilities but the latter should win

Friday s games will be featured by the Prospect Shovel game and the K of P Sers U Wel tilt The Shovels are given a slight edge over the Firemen for no good reason at all except that somebody has to win and it may be the Diggers The Pythians are always dangerous with Matt Kellogg in the box but the grocers fresh from their victory over the Kappas seem at least a couple or three runs the better team Not much to do in this league except to hang around and wait and see how the Shovels come out in their game with the Kappas On this game depends whether the Kappas represent the Friday night league in the Little World Series or not

By The Associated Press

The medium claimed each of these five stood beyond her chair and pushed her She said one was a woman suffragist who several years ago threw herself under one of King George's horses Persons in the audience claimed to recognize and identify each message

Turmoil Declared

The end to it this time came when the audience walking out on her and said she could not continue A vast roar of excited talk arose and the pipe organ was started to drown out the noise

The medium walked across the platform to Lady Doyle and said I have a message from Sir Arthur Sir Arthur told me that one of you went into the hut fashioning the Doyle estate at Windlesham Sussex, where he was buried Friday this morning Is that correct

'Why yes' Lady Doyle answered 'I did'

The message continued the medium is this 'Tell Mary—— At this point the pealing of the pipe organ drowned out her words

Keeps It Secret

Lady Doyle declined to say what the remainder of the message was merely explaining I want its precious and sacred I am perfectly convinced that the message is from my husband I am sure of that and I am sure that he has been here with us as I am sure that I am speaking to you It is a happy message one that is cheering and encouraging
